

This side remains stationary (relative to the motor), while the motor pulls the right side towards the left in order to close the "claw". The claw remains open by default due to the blue rubber bands pulling the right side back.

